

Seraphine

Farmer from the Twongerekawa Coko Co-operative

Seraphine has six children, four of whom are married, and two at home. She says that being a Fairtrade organic farmer with 945 trees has improved many things for her family: paying school fees, health insurance and buying clothes and food plus putting aside savings. She has a well-built house with brick walls, a tin roof and glass windows, and as well as the farming she supplements her income with basket making. She also owns a cow and a goat.
